HARDING CALLS POWERS TO DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

Far Eastern Question Will Also Be Discussed; Meeting to Be Held in Washington

Washington, July 10.—President Warren G. Harding has made an armament reduction proposal to the Great Powers so broad in its scope that it constitutes a move toward a new ordering of world affairs.

The State Department announced tonight that the President has proposed to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan a conference in Washington not only on the "limitation of armament," but on a settlement of the Pacific and Far Eastern problems.

If the proposal is accepted Washington will be the scene of a world congress rivaling in importance that of Paris in 1919.

Reshapes Pacific Policy

The conference, as proposed by the President, would consider not only a settlement of the issues which might precipitate war between the United States and Japan, but a reshaping of the policies and relations of all the nations bordering the Pacific Ocean, on which Mr. Harding deems a permanent reduction of armament largely dependent.

Out of the conference, it held, may come a new international understanding on affairs in the Pacific and Far East which will obviate any necessity of a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, a question now embarrassing the British Government.

So prominent is this possibility that the question is raised whether the British Government has not already approved, if it did not originate, the suggestion that, the Far Eastern and Pacific problems be considered by the conference on reduction of armament.

China Also Is Invited

China has been invited to participate in the discussion of the Far Eastern question, which involves the whole programme of Japanese aggrandizement on the Asiatic mainland.

Out of the conference also may come President Harding's plan for an association of nations to preserve world peace and promote the pacific adjudication of international disputes.

"Five dollars fine and ten days in jail," Judge Anderson said yesterday when Motorcycle Patrolmen Burkhardt and Siebel testified that Chambers was driving at a speed of fifty miles an hour from Hancock Street to Second Street, on Main Street.

"That's a light sentence," the court let it be known. "I shall start making them heavier later on. And from this time forward speeders will go to jail."

Judge Anderson is a native of Ohio County and practiced law here for a number of years. His many local friends are glad to hear of his elevation to the bench and of the firm stand he has taken in regard to enforcement of the law.

SIGN OF RELIEF THAT WARFARE IN IRELAND ENDS

Peace Terms Agreed to At British Military Headquarters in Dublin

London, July 9.—With something like an immense sigh of relief the entire country has greeted the news of the cessation of warfare in Ireland and Eamon de Valera's coming conference with the British prime minister at London, which it is fervently hoped will lead to restoration of peace, the prospects of which even the more cautious political observers regard as brighter than for a long time.

The careful wording of Mr. de Valera's acceptance of a conference is interpreted in some quarters here as based on the necessity of the Irish Republican leader feeling his way with his own followers. It is thought, however, that a truce deliberately embarked upon cannot well be deliberately discarded, and that alone is a consideration of great promise.

The terms of the truce, which begins at noon Monday, were agreed to at British military headquarters in Dublin this afternoon. The provisions of the truce cover fully all the ground for a temporary peace between the active Irish workers and the crown forces. All attacks, searches and raids, surveillance and provocations are to be abandoned by both sides.

Mr. de Valera's acceptance of the responsibility for fulfillment of the Irish Republican army is held to dispel the idea in some quarters that the activities branch of the Sinn Fein is beyond control of the political chiefs. Whether that is so will be tested by the course of events after the truce comes into effect.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, will remain at the Irish office throughout Sunday watching the situation. As Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, is remaining in London, it is concluded that Premier Lloyd George's principal task next week will be to bring him and Mr. de Valera together.

In a manifesto issued at Dublin this afternoon, the Republican leader calls upon the people of Ireland to prove by their actions that "this is a struggle of an organized nation," but warns them against "undue confidence" in the peace discussions.

He urges upon them "unbending determination to endure all that may still be necessary, and fortitude such as you have shown in all your recent sufferings, which alone," he declares, "will lead to the peace you desire."

HARDING THROWS WEIGHT AGAINST BONUS MEASURE

Goes to Capitol and Tells Senators He Endorses Mellon on Legislation for Ex-Soldiers

Washington, July 7.—President Harding paid an unexpected visit to the senate today and, it is understood, imposed the weight of his personal influence to defer action on the soldier bonus bill until a clearer understanding of the government's financial outlook has been made possible by enactment of new tariff and tax laws.

In an hour's conference with senate leaders, the president is understood to have endorsed the views of Secretary Mellon that bonus legislation now might be a serious embarrassment to the treasury, and even to have suggested that all other legislative business be suspended to permit completion of the tariff and tax revisions as soon as possible. By those who talked with him, he was quoted as favoring a recess of congress while the committees in charge are hastening perfection of the two measures on account of which the special session was called.

While the president was giving his opinion to senators after senator, in his room off the senate chamber, the senate itself was debating the bonus bill with sponsors for the measure confident of its passage. By an overwhelming vote the bill had been brought to the senate floor as a special order of business and the senators in charge were inclined to predict that even the opposition of Secretary Mellon would not be sufficient to deny it.

Outlook More Uncertain Tonight the outlook generally was admitted to be more uncertain. Leaders had not yet made a canvass to ascertain just how much weight the visit of the president might have and the disposition in most quarters was to await Mr. Harding's message before forcing a show-down. After the message has been received it is regarded as likely that an attempt will be made to send the bonus bill back to committee and then secure another vote on the recess proposal which failed of adoption several days ago by a margin of four votes.

In their opposition to a recess the bonus advocates are expected to have the aid of various other senate elements who want action on some particular class of legislation. Not the least potential of these groups, it generally is expected, will be the agricultural bloc which are determined to put through a series of relief measures for the farmer. The final division is expected to be along group rather than party lines.

Talks With Senators

Leaders of the elements most anxious to push particular measures to enactment were among the first to be summoned into conference by the president when he reached his room at the capitol. Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, in charge of the bonus bill, and Senators Norris, Republican, Nebraska, Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, and Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, prominent in the agricultural group, were said to have been told frankly and emphatically by Mr. Harding that he considered completion of the tariff and tax program the prime duty of the federal government. In each case the president punctuated his arguments by vigorous gestures and nods of the head.

Mr. Harding's conferences on the legislative situation were held after he had broken a precedent by taking luncheon with a party of senators in the senate restaurant. Most of those in whose company he was accustomed to take his meals during his senatorial days were at the table and the president made a manifest effort to make the visit as informal as possible.

FARM EXTRACTS

INFORMATION FROM THE EXPERIMENT STATION — AGRICULTURAL PAPERS AND THE COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

Farm Agent To Give Poultry Culling Demonstration

Plans are being made by County Agent McCracken in co-operation with the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture for a series of poultry culling demonstrations which will be held soon on different farms for the purpose of showing farmers and their wives of Ohio county how to tell the loafing hen from the heavy-laying one, according to an announcement which he made today.

According to poultry specialists, approximately one-third of the hens on Kentucky farms molt during July and August and stop laying until the following spring. Certain characteristics which these molting hens make it easy to tell them from the heavy-laying hen, County Agent McCracken said.

Farmers from different communities will meet on a certain farm in that section where poultry specialists from the College of Agriculture will show County Agent McCracken in giving the demonstration. Loafers and heavy-laying hens from the flock on the farm will be selected and the farmers and their wives shown the difference between the two. Circulars will also be distributed and the process of culling explained in detail so that the poultry owners can return to their own farms and cull the hens that are not laying.

Solving Cowpeas After Small Grains

The cowpeas which follow wheat or corn, the growing of cowpeas after grain is in most cases for the most part a method of adding nitrogen to the soil. If the cowpeas are planted promptly after the grain is harvested, the soil is enriched by a good growth of forage for plowing under in the fall. The cowpeas mature in much as two tons of dry matter per acre can be grown, which is far in excess of a crop of corn. It is equal to an application of 6 tons of stable manure per acre. The stock farmer will find it more profitable to utilize the peas for hay and plow the manure produced to the land.

To obtain a good yield, cowpeas should be sown just as soon as the wheat or other grain is cut. To wait until the grain is threshed means a loss of from two to three weeks of good growing weather. The way to get the peas planted early is to follow the binder with the disk harrow and drill. Usually three extra loads are required, two for disking and one for drilling. The peas may also be sown broadcast and covered with the disk harrow, which will save one team.

Provided the teams are not available for following the binder, the wheat should be cut in straight rows and the land disked and planted as wheat is planted after corn. Apparently a thorough disking is nearly as good preparation for sowing peas as plowing. For cowpeas do not require an especially well-prepared seedbed. The disking should be deep and thorough, however, so the seed may be adequately covered.

Where cowpeas are grown for fertilizing purposes, they should be plowed under in time to sow a rye cover crop. Unless this is done, a considerable loss of nitrogen may result because of leaching.

Blue Needs Of Western Kentucky Coal Fields

The northern part of western Kentucky consists of soils derived from the coal measure formations. Specifically, they resulted from the decay of native sandstone, shale, and conglomerate. The Dekalb is the main series, while the Christian and Thistle occupy extensive portions. The lime content of these soils was low from their inception, which, coupled with poor drainage, augments the need for heavy applications. The lime requirement is about 2,700 pounds of calcium oxide equivalent per acre. Cherting this area and centering in Breckenridge and Grayson counties, is a narrow band of soils from the Chester formation, which even exceed the coal measure soils in acidity.

Learn Demonstrations

More than 100 farmers in 27 Kentucky counties are endeavoring to find out which variety of corn is best for their section of the State by conducting demonstrations during the summer in co-operation with their Farm Bureaus, the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture and their county farm agents, according to an announcement made by Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist from the College.

Varieties which are being used in the demonstrations include Boone County White, Hickory King, Iowa Silvermine, Reid's Yellow Dent and Pride of Saline, the latter being a Kansas variety. Seed for the tests was furnished by the College of Agriculture to each of the farmers who also will grow three or four of the most popular local varieties in each of the tests. Seed was planted in both the bottom and upland soils of each of the 27 counties. The work will be continued for several years until it has been demonstrated beyond reasonable doubt what two or three varieties of corn are most reliable and highest yielding in every section of the State.

Wheat With a Pedigree

More than 500 acres of Ashland wheat, the new pedigreed strain developed by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, have just been harvested in Kentucky, according to estimates made by specialists in the soils and crops department of the station. The acreage was divided among 32 farms in 16 counties and is expected to produce between 8,000 and 10,000 bushels of grain which will be available for seed this fall.

Ashland was developed at the station in 1913 and has been the most successful wheat grown there in the last six years. It yielded an average of 33.6 bushels during that time. Leroy Filiz averaged 132 bushels an acre for the same period. Funchester, 30.2 bushels and Ashland Profite, 28.5 bushels.

Louisville, Ky., July 19.—One of the most important services performed by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station during the last year for farmers of Kentucky was the analysis and inspection of fertilizers. According to the thirty-third annual report of the station which shows that there were 815 different brands registered in the State. These were classified as complete fertilizers, 102; acid phosphate, 112; nitrogenous superphosphates, 164; phosphates with potash, 81; bones, tankage, etc., 53; sulphate of ammonia, one, and nitrate of soda, one.

The laboratory work of the fertilizer control department of the station included the analysis of most of the brands registered. In addition to the analysis of samples which were collected by inspectors of the station or sent in by farmers.

HEALTH OFFICERS ASKED TO HELP DR. McMULLEN

All County Officers Urged By State Health Officer To Co-Operate

Louisville, Ky.—Every county health officer in Kentucky has been urged by Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, to co-operate with Dr. John McMullen of the United States Public Health Service, now in this State waging a fight on trachoma, to the fullest extent and to aid him in his work in every possible way.

Dr. McMullen, according to Dr. McCormack, in evolving methods for the diagnosis and cure of trachoma in its early stages has made one of the world's greatest contributions to preventive medicine. His actions in calling on Kentucky county health officers to render assistance in this campaign, Dr. McCormack also pledged, is in keeping with a resolution passed at the recent National Convention of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America, in which united support was pledged to Dr. McMullen in his "systematic and well-planned campaign for the eradication of trachoma."

RAILROADS TO GET HALF BILLION SOON

Advances Will Benefit General Financial Situation, Mellon Says

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department announced today that under a provisional refunding arrangement made with the railroad executives the carriers would receive approximately $500,000,000 in additional advances from the Federal Government within the next six months.

Mr. Mellon said the negotiations with the railroad executives probably would be completed within two days and that the advances contemplated would give to the railroads in cash sums of money equivalent to those which the Government spent in capital betterments during the period of wartime control. The Government will receive for the advances 6 per cent security evidencing the indebtedness of the particular railroads which receive the advances, it was explained.

All of the claims and counter claims between the individual railroads and the Government arising out of maintenance expenditures during the control period are involved in the negotiations. Mr. Mellon indicated, and where arrangement for an advance is completed some sort of a compromise agreement will result in each case to clear up the outstanding differences.

Mr. Mellon said he believed the advances to the roads would be beneficial to the general financial situation and might assist in a resumption of business activity. In many cases, he said, the advances would enable the railroads to pay outstanding debts to industrial companies for supplies used during the past year and would in addition furnish funds for the betterment of equipment and repair of neglected railroad property.

In the long run, he added, the Government would obtain a net profit from the advances, since the money necessary could be borrowed at a lower interest rate than the securities which the railroads return to the Government would bear. Railroad securities now held by the Treasury, he said amounted to approximately $400,000,000, and interest and capital payments had been regularly met on all of them, giving the Government an income of about $18,000,000 a year.

DECLARES ROBBER MADE BOND FOR FRANK BLAIR

Detective Saint Clair Says Blair's Partner Admitted Fact
To Him

The original $800 which was given Attorney Roscoe Searcy to be used as a cash bond for "John Doe," as Frank Blair, recently pardoned by Governor Morrow, then was known, came from Adam Zeher, alias William Dornann, partner of Blair in the robbery of the Leavenworth, Ind., State Bank, according to admissions Detective Sergeant A. J. St. Clair says Zeher made to him.

Zeher now is serving a term in the Atlanta Penitentiary for the bank robbery, for which Blair is under indictment. It was to escape this prosecution by the Federal Government, it is charged, that Blair was hurried away from Frankfort immediately on being pardoned. State officials have said that Blair went away in a taxicab hired by Maurice Galvin, Covington, Republican leader, who had prevailed on the Governor to pardon Blair and who has refused to reveal who the "friends" of Blair were who asked him to get Blair out of Frankfort.

St. Clair says Zeher told him that his mission here July 3, 1919, was to raise money to "spring" Blair. Zeher was arrested when he tried to sell $2,700 worth of Liberty bonds at the Louisville National Bank. These proved to be stolen bonds. Detective St. Clair declares that "higher-ups" in the criminal ring to which Blair and Zeher belong undoubtedly used their influence in obtaining the pardon. This "organization," as it is known, he says, always is ready to "go to the front" with big sums of money for men valuable to the "ring."

DUNCAN LANDS 100-POUND TARPON

W. G. Duncan, President of the Duncan Coal Company of Greenville, Ky., and D. W. Christian, a member of the firm, are spending some time in Miami, guests at the San Carlos hotel. Both of these gentlemen are old visitors in Miami, having spent several winters here, and are well-known. Mr. Duncan is president of the Miami Anglers' Club, being very much interested in, and an old hand at fishing as a sport.

Last week Mr. Duncan and Mr. Christian made a trip up the coast from Key West in Captain Hatch's boat, "The Gipsy Queen." The party made the trip for the excellent opportunity afforded them to fish for tarpon and had phenomenal luck. The largest tarpon pulled was landed by Mr. Christian, the big fish weighing 100 pounds. He also caught the largest snapper that Capt. Hatch has ever seen pulled out of these waters. It weighed 20 pounds.

Mr. Duncan used light tackle and succeeded in landing a 63-pound tarpon, which is considered very good work. The party had a splendid outing and enjoyed the sport to the fullest extent, as only old fishermen can enjoy it. Besides the catch mentioned, the men landed a considerable number of fish of various kinds, including dolphin, barracuda and mackerel.

Mr. Christian and Mr. Duncan will leave for Kentucky today and will drive the entire distance in their car. —Miami (Fla.) Herald-June 28.

PROMISE VIGOROUS COPY ENFORCEMENT

Washington, June 29.—Reorganization of the Federal prohibition enforcement forces along lines previously announced will become effective July 1, Commissioner Haynes said today. On that date the new State directors will succeed the present district directors and the flying column of agents for interstate work, directly under the Commissioner, will take the field.

Mr. Haynes went over his plans with members of the Senate Finance Committee recently when the question of additional funds for the Government's "dry" agents was up. The reorganization plans, Mr. Haynes said, had been given "remarkable endorsements" from all parts of the country and he expected co-operation from State and local officials to carry out the letter of the prohibition law.

The country is expecting a vigorous, sane and efficient law enforcement policy," he said. "Much valuable experience has been gained in the first year of the operation of the prohibition organization. 'Advantage' should and will be taken of this experience in order that the work may be done in a more efficient manner."

The recent rainy weather has wrought sad havoc with many farmers in the vicinity of Sulphur Springs. Jim Capp says a man from up above him has been down Rough Creek looking for two acres of tobacco that got away one night during a freshet, he having forgotten to make it fast.

BRAVEST RESCUE IN NIAGARA'S HISTORY

Medal Urged For Modest Hero Who Saved Woman Near Brink of Falls

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 6.—A movement was started today to obtain Carnegie medals and prizes for Douglas Moodie and Fred Smith, both of this city, whom officials of the Niagara State Reservation credit with rescuing Mrs. Joseph Raines from the river 100 feet above the brink of the American falls yesterday. Moodie is the modest hero who waded out into the stream and brought the woman to shore and then disappeared in the crowd, refusing to give his name. Smith aided him in the rescue.

E. R. Waldenberger, superintendent of the reservation, will recommend to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission at Pittsburgh that the two men be rewarded. The superintendent characterizes Moodie's feat as the bravest in the long list of Niagara rescues. Mrs. Raines' rescue, reservation records show, is the most remarkable to date. No one has ever been known to travel so far in the river at the point above the falls and to have been saved. The spot where she was rescued is approximately 100 feet above the brink and twenty feet from shore. She floated down-

AIRDRIE

About the year 1853 R. A. Alexander, a native of Scotland, bought a tract of land near Paradise, Muhlenberg County, Kentucky, known as the McLain survey, being the same land on which McLain opened a coal mine some years previous to selling to Alexander. McLain mined coal, loaded it on flat boats, and floated it to New Orleans. The coal was known as No. 11. Alexander brought some fifty or sixty families over from Scotland and established homes for them about one half-mile below or north of Paradise. They immediately went to work building dwellings, stores, barns and other necessary buildings for permanent homes. All the men were expert mechanics, engineers, stone masons, carpenters, business men and architects.

After their homes were made comfortable they turned to the work of preparing for elaborate iron works, patterned after the works owned by Alexander in Scotland. They built a dressed-stone house for an engine room. It was two stories high, had a solid stone wall across the center, and was covered with slate. Every stone in the building was dressed by hand and hoisted to place by windlasses turned by man power. They had an engine built in Scotland, as were the boilers, and shipped to New Orleans, then up the Mississippi, Ohio and Green rivers in barges, and discharged within a few hundred feet of the engine room. The engine was about seven feet long and twelve or fourteen inches in diameter. It was set on end in the north east corner of the room, the upper end being level with the floor. The boilers were two-fueled, and there were eighteen of them, set in two batteries of nine each. They were placed near the south end of the engine room at the foot of a flight of stone steps running to the level of the tunnel through the hill.

There was a casting weighing tons balanced on the center wall of the engine room, one end of which was attached to the piston of the engine and the other to a fly-wheel that was twenty-five feet in diameter. Pump pistons for water and air were attached to this casting (called a walking-beam.) Between the engine-room and the bluff there was a large water reservoir, that would hold thousands of gallons of water, also a large tank for storage of oil, which was forced into it by the pumps. The tank was about forty feet long and in the shape of a huge boiler. On this tank was a safety-valve that would open at a certain pressure, and the escaping air from this valve could be heard for miles. It annoyed the whole country for ten miles around and was very disagreeable, disturbing the rest of the people, especially the sick. From this tank the air passed through a furnace where it was heated to an extremely high temperature. A small hole was made in one of the pipes to test the hot air before it was forced into the smelting-furnace near by. The hole was not larger than a cambric needle. Open it and pass a bar of lead across it and the hot air would cut it in two so quick that you could not see it.

The smelting-stack was built up level with the mine opening, and the ore and coal were wheeled by hand from the yard and dumped into it. The coal was charred before it was used. The iron-ore was mined something like a half-mile west of the furnace and was trammed through the hill by mule power. After the ore was melted, the stack was tapped, the molten mass run out through a ditch or canal made of sand, into the moulding yard, where it was allowed to cool in the moulds. The yard was located between the stack and the river, in front of the stack. When the iron cooled they broke off the pig from the main lead, and stacked it up ready for shipping. The stone that was used for building the engine-room and the stack was quarried from the ground where they now stand. A large mill was built south of the engine-room; it was about 100 feet long and 50 feet wide. A saw-mill, brick-mill and other machinery were placed in it. All the brick made there were what is known as fire brick. The kilns for burning the brick were located between the engine-room and the mill. They sunk a shaft about a half-mile west of the hill, to a depth of 450 feet. I have heard it said that no one except the "bosses" knew for what it was sunk.

I lived about one mile due east from the works and was often there during its building and operation. When the furnace was in full blast one could sit in our yard on the darkest night and read a newspaper. Many a night I have studied my school lessons at our home by the light of the furnace. At that time the Green River country was almost a wilderness, and had limited markets for such farm products as were raised. Tobacco and pork had to be marketed in New Orleans. Home consumption of garden stuff was the only market for vegetables. Airdrie was the first local market in the valley. I have delivered vegetables in Airdrie many times and it was always a cash business. We were paid in gold, principally. The gold was in denominations of $20.00, $10.00, $5.00, $2.50 and $1.00, silver in 3c, 5c, 10c, 25c and 50c, and for dollars three was the five-franc piece, a French coin worth 95c in gold. The Scots were a lively lot. They soon became familiar with the natives and were always getting up amusements for the youngsters, especially dancing parties. I was about 14 years old and had never seen a dancing party. My people believed dancing was a cardinal sin, but like most youngsters I was ready for any new thing that came down the pike. So some of my pals and I would sneak out and go to the balls, and then slip back to bed in time to be called to breakfast in the morning. I learned to go through the old-fashioned cotillion, the Virginia reel and a few jig steps, on old Airdrie Hill and I have never been able to get it out of my system since notwithstanding I am nearly eighty years YOUNG.

I have spent days and days wandering around and through Airdrie and you must know that I did not wander alone. There were always numerous youngsters ready for any kind of a frolic, and let me say, that there were many attractive girls in Airdrie. About the year 1857-8 the works shut down, or they found the metal was so hard that it could not be profitably worked. They then sent to St. Louis and barged what was called Black-Band Ore to mix with the Airdrie iron ore. They then started the works again and made one or two runs, but with little success. The war between the States came on, the works shut down, and the people scattered out through the two counties of Muhlenberg and Ohio. Today we have descendants of these hard-headed Scotchmen all around us and I am glad to say that they are rated as the best citizens, good neighbors, honest as the day is long, first class patriots, ready to defend our flag

FORD

Plant Builds

Demand Exceeds Output as Ford Breaks All Previous Records.

Demand Exceeds Output as Ford Breaks All Previous Records

During the month of June, the Ford Motor Company, thru its Detroit factories and 22 Assembly Plants throughout the country reached the production of 108,962 Ford cars and trucks, setting up a new high record for one month.

Production of Ford cars and trucks has been steadily increasing since early springs, and shows substantial gains over the same period last year. The second quarter of 1921, viz., April, May and June, shows an output of 301,796 Ford cars and trucks against 250,873 for the same three months of last year, or a net increase of 50,923.

Despite the fact, however, that the Ford Plants have been running at maximum capacity, the demand for Ford cars and trucks is not being met, and at the present time, many thousand unfilled orders have been piled up ahead so that Ford sales are still limited by manufacturing facilities rather than marketing possibilities. Particularly is this true with respect to enclosed cars, for which the demand has been unusually heavy.

One reason cited by Ford Officials for the unprecedented demand for Ford cars is the present tendency toward economy. Many of those whose names have been added to the long list of buyers might well have afforded larger and more costly cars than the Ford, but it is the belief that most prospective motor car buyers are investigating all of the costs incident to motoring much more carefully than at any period during the past five years.

The estimated output of the Ford factories for July calls for 109,000 cars and trucks, or a production of 4354 a day for 25 days. Since the assembling of cars is being handled on a regular eight-hour work day only, the hourly output will be 545 cars. In other words, one Ford car or truck leaves the assembly line every 6½ seconds.

BEAVER DAM AUTOCO. Beaver Dam, Ky.

of this class of Scots in our country. After the War closed Gen. Don Carlos Buell became the owner of the land immediately in and around Airdrie. He and Dr. S. A. Jackson operated the coal mines for a time using barges to deliver, with tow boats to propel the barges instead of floating them, as did the McLains. In the year 1866 the legislature ceded the navigation rights to a company for 20 years. They soon began to tax all river craft carrying products on Green River. The tariff was so high on coal that there was no profit in producing it on Green River and the Airdrie works shut down again and have not been revived to this day.

Airdrie is now a resort for picnicking and fishing. All the machinery, houses and material have been scrapped and sold, nothing remaining except the engine-room and the stack. The slate of the roof has long since been carried away by piecemeal. Large trees have grown up in the moulding yards, in the reservoir and the brick kilns. The roads and yards are fast becoming thickets of briars and small timber, blackberries growing where it was hotter than the underworld is said to be. Several years ago, the State determined to build a branch prison at Eddyville, Ky. They contracted for the stone at Airdrie, sent a lot of prisoners from Frankfort to load the stone on barges and bring it to Rockport and transfer it to cars to ship to Eddyville, but, before they had shipped any stone they found that they could work the stone at less cost nearer the new prison. While the convicts were at Airdrie they were housed in the old engine-room. Some years ago some writer to the Cincinnati and Louisville papers, through ignorance or willful misrepresentation, wrote Airdrie up as a penitentiary. This was all out of line; it was never intended, or used for a prison, except as stated above. Referring again to the people of Airdrie, I do not want to leave the impression that the good Scots were immoral. They were as a class strictly moral, and held to the Presbyterian faith with all the tenacity of their old forebear. The Pattersons, Duncans, Heaths, Tolis, McDougals, Sneddoes, Wilsons, Kelths, Williams, Hamiltons, Kelleys, Terrances and many other families are among the best citizens Ohio and Muhlenberg counties have. They are capable, energetic, honorable and true men and women, leaders in church and school, a little clanish, in that they almost unanimously hold the Presbyterian faith, and generally practice what they preach. They make good soldiers, good mechanics, good farmers, good preachers and above all good neighbors.

I am one among a few men who were intimate with Old Airdrie from its first stroke on the hills of Muhlenberg county to the present date. It virtually was, and is my native home. Many memories of my boyhood and later manhood are centered in and around Old Airdrie.

President Harding has our sympathy in the embarrassing situation in which he has been placed by the revelation of making a decision as to his attitude toward the soldier's bonus bill, now before Congress. He has had to settle the question that has puzzled us all. Wisdom and Common Sense vs. Justice and Sentiment.
The President has recommended to Congress, pursuant to the advice given him by the Secretary of the Treasury, that it would be ruinous to the financial condition of the country at this time to add the additional burden on the taxpayers which would be entailed by the passage of the bonus bill. The country fully appreciates the debt it owes its gallant defenders in the late war, but the United States is now confronted by as great a crisis as in 1917-18, and it looks as if both parties are agreed that a general bonus will have to be postponed until the financial and economic outlook is brighter. In the meantime, a part of our debt of gratitude should be paid by the passage of adequate and comprehensive laws for the care, maintenance, education and compensation of those who did not come out of the late conflict unscathed.

If the Tariff Bill before Congress is passed, it will result in the most scandalous robbery of the plain people under the guise of law ever yet perpetrated by the "big interests" for the purpose of "protecting" such "punny" industries as the Steel Trust, the Lumber Trust, the Wool Trust, etc. The duties proposed by the Fordney bill are, on their face, about three times as high as those of the Underwood tariff, passed by the Democrats, and slightly higher than those of the notorious and fatal Payne-Aldrich tariff. But the real rottenness of the bill is only apparent when the joker is detected. It is provided that the value of imports for taxing purposes shall be fixed at the same figure as the cost of production or sale price of similar commodities in the United States. This is the way left open for the corporations to artificially force up prices and kill two birds with one stone.
Foreign producers will be deterred from importing and the American public will pay for protection of the trusts by paying exorbitant prices for the necessities of life.

There has been widespread discontent in Ohio County over the failure of the authorities to properly enforce the laws against the illicit manufacture and sale of intoxicants. In some sections violations of these laws have been frequent, open and notorious. In one community it is reported that it has been necessary to employ a special officer to protect the citizens and prevent flagrant disregard of law. A number of "moonshine" stills have been captured, but few operators. Occasional indictments were returned, but apparently no serious effort was made to round up such offenders until this term of Circuit Court. Twenty-two indictments were returned by the Grand Jury against persons charged with violation of the liquor laws.
At the request of the Sheriff, the local papers are refraining from publishing the names of those indicted, for fear that such publicity might result in the escape of the culprits.

We are glad to co-operate with the officials in any reasonable way in the war on lawbreakers, but we feel it our duty to warn them that the question of law enforcement is squarely up to them. A good beginning has been made; let the good work go on.
Our grand juries will indict. If the officers and citizenship of the county will furnish the evidence. If the courts will then give speedy trials and inflict the maximum penalty provided by law, the stain of lawlessness and lax enforcement of the laws will be removed from the hitherto fair name of Ohio County.

PARTY LEADERS DEFEATED

Washington, July 5.—Both party leaders in the Senate were defeated, today by the agricultural bloc of Western and Southern Senators whose nonpartisan organization reassembles the cornstalk brigade of the Ohio Legislature.

In this, the first out-and-out clash of the new unit with the political divisions, a resolution of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, for which Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, Democratic floor leader, spoke and voted, was defeated, 27 to 24.

The resolution was to adjourn Thursday night, July 28—and later was changed to adjourn Saturday night, August 8—to return to take up the tariff now before the House.
Senator Lodge introduced the resolution, saying, "I have said last week it would not be submitted before tomorrow."

Proof of Power Visible

The event has much significance.
Although the resolution might be passed over when a number of Senators, now absent, have returned, it was demonstrated clearly today how much power this agricultural bloc held in the Senate. Its opposition was due to its desire to pass a half dozen bills which, while not altogether agricultural, have been agreed upon in the legislative trading.

After the vote Senator Lodge announced on the floor that the present session would merge into the December session in all probability.
No further attempt at recess would be made by him, he said.

This indicates that Congress will be in continuous session until this time next year, or perhaps later.

SINGING CONVENTION
LARGELY ATTENDED

The Singing Convention held at the Fair Grounds on the 4th, brought out the largest crowd, perhaps, ever present at a meeting of like character, within the County.
Seven choirs were present and participated in the program, which was much enjoyed by all. Good order and good fellowship was much in evidence throughout the day.

The Convention was called to order at 10 a. m., by chairman Ozna Shults, followed by song by the audience and prayer by the Rev. W. J.
Miller. Minutes of previous convention were read and approved. The Convention then organized by re-electing Ozna Shults Chairman and L. B. Loney Secretary. Seven choirs reported ready to participate and their leaders were appointed a committee on program. They recommended that each class should sing two songs in the forenoon and three in the afternoon with a solo, duet or quartette if desired. The welcome address was delivered by Judge R.
R. Wedding.

The classes present were as follows: Hartford, G. J. Christian, leader; Mt. Hermon, J. F. Duke, leader; Washington, J. E. Park, leader; Sulphur Springs, Wilbur Johnson, leader; Liberty, Horace Taylor, leader; Independence, Eugene Hibbs leader; Williams Mines, Bert Lee, leader.

A patriotic song by Elsie Stevens and Mildred Tweddell, of Nocreek, was worthy of special mention. After all classes had rendered their first two numbers, the convention recessed for dinner, following prayer by Rev. J. W. Shepherd.

The Convention was called to order for the afternoon session at 1:30 and one hour was devoted to quar-tettes, duets and solos by members of each class. After the classes had rendered three more songs, each the convention voted its thanks to Dr. L. B. Bean for his kindness shown, in the free use of the fair grounds etc.

This was one of the best, if not the best meeting ever held by the convention and the body is deeply appreciative and gratified at the kindness and generosity extended by the people of Hartford and vicinity, on this occasion. The dinner and other arrangements were all that could have been desired.

The Convention adjourned to meet at Mt. Hermon on the 5th.
Sunday in July 1921, following prayer by Rev. John Hamilton.

FOUR TONS MAY BE
WEIGHT OF SHOTTo Be Fired From Silent Gun Planned in New York

Recently

New York, July 5.—A silent gun that will shoot four-ton explosive gas bombs 200 or 300 miles at a velocity of one to five miles a second is in process of development by Hudson Maxim and a group of associates. The system is based on a new principle in the explosion of ordinary smokeless gunpowder.

In a demonstration conducted this afternoon in an office on the fifty-first floor of a New York skyscraper, a steel bullet three inches long and a half inch in diameter was shot through a three-quarter-inch steel plate at a velocity of one mile a second, a materially greater velocity than has been developed in projectiles of any kind.

The demonstration was silent, the sole sound being the impact of the bullet as it bored through the plate.
The silencer is on a new principle and is in no way a copy of the old principles of the Maxim silencer.

The original invention is the work of Robert Temple, an English inventor.

The ultimate application to the hurling of huge bombs across extraordinary distances in actual warfare has been passed on by experts and pronounced to be practical.

The invention is to be applied to steel construction work. This afternoon a threaded steel bolt was driven through a three-quarter inch steel plate. The gun was in contact with the plate, and the charge was measured so that the bolt stopped in the plate. The threads were intact and a nut was screwed on.
The charge was only 20 grains of ordinary smokeless powder.

The gun resembles an ordinary air compressing drill. Observers could easily have imagined that the force was compressed air. There was no recoil, no smoke, practically no heat. Only a faint hissing of slowly escaping gases after the discharge.

It was announced that the model had been used by divers under water for application to steel work, and that it operated as well as in the air.

Sir Edgar Rees Jones, member of Parliament, and former Chief of the British Ministry of Munitions, is associated with the Americans in the development of the invention.

Dr. Miller-Rees Hutchinson, formerly chief engineer to Thomas A.
Edison, is another member of the group.

Among those who witnessed the demonstration were Maxim, Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, United States navy, and William M. Williams, former United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

BEAVER DAM

Three stores were broken into last week. Thursday night, Tom Taylor's drug store was entered and one gallon of alcohol and some morphine taken. Blood hounds were put on the trail of the burglars but lost the trail near Render Mines.

Friday night, Otha Dexter's store was broken into. All Mr. Dexter missed was one dollar and some cents in money. The same night, Charles Hurt's drug store was broken into at about 2 o'clock. Five shots rang out and a young man by the name of Bailey was found on the sidewalk in front of the drug store, mortally wounded. No one knows who did the shooting. The wounded man was taken to his father's home near Rosine, where he died, Saturday evening. He had $4.00 and a bracelet in his possession. He was only about 17 years old and was never known to be in anything of the kind before.

The people of Beaver Dam will organize to protect their property from burglars' raids. When a house is broken into hereafter, it will be known who the thief is.

DUDLEY'S DIAMOND DOPE

Hartford Team Strikes Its Stride; Wallops Beaver Dam

In a game as full of thrills as a dog is of fleas, the battling Hartford nine defeated the Beaver Dam aggregation, at Riverside Park, Sunday afternoon, by the score of 5 to 4. Bozarth started the game as the locals' star artist and had "Hawk's" bunch eating out of his hand, but was forced to retire in the second on account of a lame arm. Thorpe, who replaced him, pitched masterly ball at all stages of the game, holding the visitors to three measly hits during the remainder of the season. Spectacular fielding by Maddox and C. Taylor kept Beaver Dam from denting the slate when they needed runs most. J. Taylor was the batting star of the game, getting a triple, a double and a single out of four trips.

MARTWICK ANNEXES ANOTHER

In a slow and listless game at the local park Saturday afternoon Martwick defeated Hartford 8 to 3. For five innings it gave promise of being a peach of a game, but in the fifth the visitors secured five runs on bunched hits, and errors by the home boys.

Hartford will play Beaver Dam at Beaver Dam Saturday afternoon. A great game is promised as Manager Hocker, of Beaver Dam is determined to retrieve the recent defeat of his cohorts.

Morgantown will play the locals at Riverside Park next Sunday afternoon. Morgantown has a classy bunch of ball tossers and as Hartford has a warm aggregation, the fur is due to fly when Ohio and Butler come to grips.

The local management is trying to book a game with a team made up of teachers in attendance at the Institute for Wednesday afternoon. Watch for later announcements.

The Beaver Dam team added another scalp to its belt Saturday when it trounced Morgantown to the tune of 11 to 6.

Melleny defeated Provo last week-end by a lone tally, after twelve grueling innings. We are informed that the score was 7 to 6.

Beaver Dam will play Cayceville at the latter place next Sunday.

DIAMOND DUST

Early in the season Stevens had J. Taylor's goat, but Sunday the worm turned and "Johnnie" smacked the old pill all over the lot.

J. Glenn covered the initial sack in great style Sunday and many fans thought that "Eddie Clotte" Duke was back home until they learned the identity of the high-powered first sacker.

The most admirable feature of Sunday's game between Beaver Dam and Hartford was the good spirit and cordial feeling prevailing of sportsmanship pervade the whole contest. Congratulations. That is as it should be and may it ever be so.
